FIGHTERBASE

Carnivore

Diet guide

Animal foods only.

Prepared 11 October 2026 for FighterBase members. Eating styles library, one of a set.

> DRAFT: not yet reviewed by a registered dietitian. General information only, not medical advice. Check with your doctor or a registered dietitian before changing how you eat, especially if you have a medical condition, are pregnant, or are under 18.

USING FIGHTERBASE

How to use this diet guide

This diet guide is part of your eating styles library in the FighterBase app. The pages that follow are built to be skimmed. You do not need to read it all at once.

1. Open Nutrition
   In the app, open the Nutrition tab and tap Eating styles.

2. Tap Carnivore
   Read the short summary, what to eat, what to go easy on, and what to watch.

3. Follow it
   Tap Follow this style. Recipes and the Foods list then filter to match, so you only see what fits. You can follow more than one style.

4. Download the PDFs
   Use Full food list and Diet guide to save these to your phone. Handy for the shop or a restaurant.

5. Log it and train
   Meals you log count towards your day. Spend your energy on training, not on reading labels.

> Looking for the full list of foods? Download the Full food list PDF from the same screen. It names every allowed and avoided food.

THE BASICS

What is Carnivore?

Meat, fish, eggs and some dairy only. No plant foods. A recent trend with very little long-term research behind it.

Where it comes from

Carnivore is an elimination-style diet of animal foods only. It has grown through online communities and a few popular books and has little long-term research. People try it for simplicity or because plant foods upset them.

The main ideas

1. Eat only animal foods: meat, fish, eggs and, for some, dairy.
2. Drink water, and maybe coffee or tea if you allow them.
3. Salt to taste.
4. Fat is the main fuel after protein, so fattier cuts are usual.
5. Stricter versions are 'meat, salt and water' only.

Who it suits

- People trying a short, simple elimination plan with guidance
- People who want very few food decisions

Talk to your doctor or a registered dietitian first if:

- You have kidney, liver, gall bladder or heart problems, high cholesterol or gout
- You take medication for diabetes or blood pressure
- You are pregnant, breastfeeding or under 18
- You have ever had an eating disorder
- You want to do it for more than a few weeks without medical advice

TRAINING

Fuel for training

- Fast, high-intensity training can feel harder without carbohydrate. Test it long before a camp or fight.
- Eat enough: appetite changes on carnivore and many people under-eat.
- Salt and fluids matter, especially in hot gyms.
- Organ meat (liver, in small amounts) can help cover vitamins.

> No carbs, so high-intensity work may feel harder. Plenty of fluids and salt.

Nutrients to keep an eye on

Vitamin C
immune function and connective tissue
Where: fresh meat has small amounts; organ meats help; talk to a professional

Fibre
gut health: none on this diet
Where: no plant sources, which is one risk

Magnesium and potassium
muscle and sleep
Where: salt, bone broth, meat; consider supplements if advised

Calcium
bones
Where: dairy if you allow it, sardines with bones

Common mistakes

- Doing it long term without bloods or advice
- Not eating enough
- Too little salt or fluid at first
- Treating it as a quick cut for a weigh-in
- Using only lean meat and under-eating fat

EVERYDAY LIFE

Labels, eating out and swaps

Reading labels

- Processed meats may contain sugar, starch, dextrose or plant fillers
- Check sausages, bacon, burgers and stock
- Read cheese and cream labels if you include them

Eating out

- Order steak, burgers (no bun), grilled fish or chicken.
- Ask for butter instead of sauce.
- Say no to sides, or ask for extra meat or eggs.
- Check marinades for sugar.

Easy swaps

Milk in coffee	→	Cream or black
Sauce	→	Butter or bone broth
Snacks	→	Boiled eggs, jerky (no sugar), pork scratchings

PUT IT INTO PRACTICE

A sample week

One way a week could look. Portions and total food depend on you and your training.

	Breakfast	Lunch	Dinner
Mon	Eggs and bacon	Burger patties	Ribeye steak
Tue	Scrambled eggs and sausage	Tinned sardines	Roast chicken thighs
Wed	Omelette with cheese (if allowed)	Leftover steak	Lamb chops
Thu	Eggs and ham	Tuna with mayonnaise	Salmon fillet
Fri	Bacon, eggs	Chicken wings	Beef mince, fried in tallow
Sat	Smoked salmon, scrambled eggs	Hard cheese and cold meat	Pork belly
Sun	Steak and eggs	Prawns	Roast beef

Snacks

Boiled eggs · Jerky (no sugar) · Pork scratchings · Hard cheese (if allowed) · Tinned fish

Shopping list

Beef, lamb, pork, chicken · Fish and shellfish · Eggs · Butter, tallow, lard · Hard cheese (optional) · Salt · Liver (optional)

GOOD TO KNOW

Questions people ask

Is carnivore safe?

There is little long-term research. Short, supervised trials are safer than open-ended ones.

Can athletes do it?

Some do. Many report weaker high-intensity performance at first. Test it in training, not before a fight.

Does it help weight cutting?

It can change body water and weight, but that is not a safe weight-cut method. Talk to a professional.

For fighters and combat athletes

- No eating style makes a rapid weight cut safe. Sweating, fluid restriction and crash diets hurt performance and can be dangerous. Plan any weight cut with a registered sports dietitian and your coach, well before the weigh-in.
- Fuel the training first. Hard sparring and conditioning need carbohydrate and enough total food. If a style cuts a food group, have a plan to replace what is lost.
- Protein across the day. A common general range for people training hard is about 1.4 to 2.0 g per kg of body weight a day (draft range, to be confirmed by a dietitian).
- Try changes in training, never in fight week. Test new foods, supplements and timing well before competition.
- Under 18, pregnant, or with a medical condition: get advice from a doctor or dietitian before changing your diet.
